

CYANOTYPES

With Sharon Anderson

Sunday 29th September 2019 10am – 3pm

Cyanotypes are a very early form of photography and were used in building plans in the form of 'blueprints'. Cyanotypes are easy and fun to make. They can be exposed outside using the sun's ultraviolet rays or inside using an exposure box with UV lights. Weather permitting, we will try both.

Another technique we can attempt is 'wet cyanotype' which can give an unpredictable but very interesting image. This is a more creative approach to cyanotypes.

Be prepared for the wow! when doing cyanotypes.

Please bring pressed plants, leaves, feathers, lace, doilies etc. Some items will be supplied.

Bring an apron, covered shoes and your lunch. Arc will provide tea, coffee and biscuits.
